WINE FROM MONASTERIES

The history of good wines of Christian Europe is deeply connected with monastic life. Since the early Middle Ages community's paid homage to God through the splendour and finesse of their wines, as well as through their architecture, liturgical chanting and illuminated manuscripts. The numerous references to wine and the vine which punctuate the Bible are proof enough that a good wine is like a prayer in praise of God. In the following centuries, monks, faithful to the Rule of their founder, devoted themselves with unflagging courage to working in the fields, knowing that "they are truly monks if they live by the labor of their hands" (Rule of St Benedict). The vineyard became one of the most favored places of this labor, where the sons of St Benedict would invest the patience and ingenuity, of which they had been given the secret, to develop the lands entrusted to them to their full potential. Clos de Vougeot, Romanée-Conti, Châteauneuf-du-Pape, Tuscany, Trentino, and more others are just some of the unforgettable vineyards that were created by the monks.

"With our wines we wish to share with you the treasures of rural and monastic souls. In the wine glass, the innocence of farmers who are in touch with life's truths and the rhythm of nature sings together with the innocent spirit of the monks, who ceaselessly contemplate the Beauty of God. We desire our wines to be a journey to the peaks, from the visible to the Invisible." (Dom Gerard, the founder of the Abbeys of Le Barroux)

Ubi caritas et amor, Deus ibi est - Where charity and love are present, God is also there. (Jean-Robert Pitte)

FRANCE

Abbaye Du Barroux – Via Caritatis

In 1309 Pope Clement V settled down permanently in Comtat-Venaissin. For his summer holiday residence, he chose the Benedictine Abbey of Notre-Dame du Groseau at the foot of Mont Ventoux. As he did in 1299, in Pessac near Bordeaux, Clement V planted vines in Le Groseau. This was the first pontifical vineyard, whose wines adorned the Pope's tables in Avignon. The young vine shoot Via Caritatis, which sprouted from the ancient papal vine, echoes the principal mission of the Pope, to preside over charity – præesse caritati. Today Via Caritatis is the way that enabled the small winegrowers of the mountains and the monks of Le Barroux to bring out together the best of their terroir, thus allowing the creative power of Charity to express itself in them, to enchant the world.

Clairrette (90 %), Roussanne

The monks chose to hold the mystery on these wines. What we can say is that these wines are made from the best plots of the monastic vineyard, cultivated only by the monks and nuns. The monks want these wines to be like the Gregorian chant: "to reach the purity of perfection with the minimum of means". Therefore, there is no wood, no barrels, nor technical processes for the vinification. It is the pure expression of fruits of excellent quality.

SILENTIUM TIBI LAUS means "silence will be for you a praise". Hereafter is the comment of the monks for this wine: silence is the only nourishment with enough consistency and perfection to be paired with this wine that is composed like a Gregorian Chant to lead the souls to the eternal Silence where God words himself as a circulation of Trinitarian Love."

Owing to the dominance of Merlot, the wine has silky tannins, while the notes of Cabernet Franc ensure the structure for the wine. The alcohol content is balanced with the richness and the body, emphasizing the notes of black berries both on the nose and the palate. PAŽAISLIS MONASTERY BERRY WINE

Pažaislis Camaldolese Monastery has grown various greenery since its establishment in 1664. Specifically, the horticultural traditions are even older than the monastery itself. The Chancellor of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania, K.Z. Pacas (1621–1684), who founded the Pažaislis Monastery, established lands in the manor, arable lands, and fields, and hop and fruit orchards in 1664 May 22 bought from Kaunas Land Court Judge S. Oborsky. Historical sources state that in the end of XVIII c.-beginning of XIX c. about 300 fruit trees were already growing in the territory of the monastery, among which apples, pears, plums, and cherries predominated. Rare plants such as grapes and walnut are also mentioned. The monks grew flowers (peonies, lilies, roses), medicinal and spice plants near their houses, the sources of which mention over 40 species. And the founder's letters reveal the ambitious desires of the brothers to set up a conservatory for growing olive trees.

It is known that a beer brewery operated in the palace of the monastery, and original recipes for brewing and serving beer have survived. And the Kaunas County Archive also holds the oldest book of prescriptions for medicinal products in Lithuania-a manuscript in which prescriptions for balms, tinctures, emulsions, oil extracts and wine-based medicines are written in Latin. It is believed that in Pažaislis, as in many European monasteries, wine was pressed.

Respecting history and seeking to extend the traditions, we have found a reliable partner - the family winery "Roksala", where wines are made only from carefully selected fruits and berries grown in Lithuania in accordance with the traditions of old winemaking. For more than a month, not even for several years, we tasted the berries and fruits ripening in Pažaislis gardens together, analyzed the old recipes of the monks and created our own Pažaislis Monastery wine.

Chardonnay

The 2013 vintage has an austere, wet granite, saline nose. The palate is fresh, with bundles of crisp Granny Smith apples, lemongrass and lime finish. The 2014 vintage has a quite strict bouquet, the palate is well balanced with a touch of spice on the entry and pleasant saline touch, moderate weight in the mouth and it gradually builds towards a harmonious, ginger-tinged finish. About 2019 vintage: Opulent yet exquisitely honed, this rich, creamy Chablis balances plump Mirabelle and quince flavors against spine-tingling edges of salt, chalk and lime zest. About 2020 vintage: Good ripe style with balance of fruit and freshness. Lovely meaty note and great length. While hedonistic and weighty in youth, its forward yellow-fruit character should develop waxy, honeyed complexities with time. The wine will be at peak from 2024 to 2035 but will hold further.

Therefore, there is no wood, no barrels, nor technical processes for the vinification. It is the pure expression of fruits of excellent quality. The meaning of UBI CARITAS ET AMOR is "where there is Charity and Love, God is also there". This name was chosen by the monks for their "Abbayes" 100% Grenache because the plenitude of a great Grenache wine expresses something of the plenitude of God's love.
